Systematic Success

Ditzingen/Pirmasens, December 2008. Long-lasting beauty for your parquet surfaces is possible with products that have been specially developed for quality and compatibility. LOBA and Wakol have developed a reliable system of products for ensuring compatibility between adhesives and floor finishes. The name is Connected Systems, and the advantage is a wide product range made up of compatible high-quality adhesives and parquet finishes – a “security suite” for the parquet layer.

A systematic approach for optimal results

Over the past eight years the adhesive manufacturer Wakol, in Pirmasens, Germany, and the floor finish specialist LOBA, in Ditzingen, have been engaged in intense cooperation, conducting extensive research and developing unparalleled expertise. This cooperative product-development work has enabled the two companies to manufacture compatible, guaranteed product systems with optimal reliability for floor laying. Since the beginning of this cooperation 12 compatible products have been created which, when used in combination, give the parquet layer the assurance of perfect results every time. All new floor finish products from LOBA and Wakol are automatically tested for system compatibility and are only included in the Connected Systems range after the respective tests for quality and compatibility have been passed.
